

Devils II

Referring to the text I wrote in connection with the introduction of the Devils series two months ago, when I found out that there might be green devils on my way, I am pleased to be able to add "... And here they are." 😊

I do not think I have anything else to add right now.

September 2017

Jan

Ps: Now that I have your attention, I would like to ask you a question, presenting you to a small challenge, a question and a task:

When was the last time that you had a pear? Alternatively, an apple? When you take a bite, where are you, where is your focus? On yourself or on the fruit?

Next time try moving your focus, first to yourself and then to the fruit, back and forth, repeatedly.

When you master this exercise, you are ready for the actual task:

The moment you take a bite of a pear, think about the parent tree behind the fruit. Ignore the sound of crushed fruit in your skull and focus on the pear tree in absentia.

If we, as cultural carriers, succeed in this little shift, much could look different.